DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1,2 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Arvidsson.

Arvidsson ('889) discloses a cutting tool, comprising two parts having cooperating connecting surfaces (12,13) of serration type, which individually comprises a plurality of ridges (16), which are mutually separated by grooves (14) and the pitch between the ridges in the respective connecting surfaces being one and the same. Arvidsson ('889) also discloses the widths of two or more grooves positioned one after the other in a series in one of the connecting surfaces increase progressively from a first groove to a last groove in the series.

Arvidsson ('889) discloses at column 6, lines 13-18:

It should furthermore be pointed out that the curve shape of the ridges and the grooves, respectively, may vary most considerably. The same may for instance have another closed curve shape than precisely a circular and polygon-like, respectively, e.g. elliptical.

Further it can be seen from figures 9-11 that two or more grooves positioned one after the other in a series in one of the connecting surfaces increase progressively from a first groove to a last groove in the series. Wherein a groove is formed between the side surface (6) and the outermost ridge. Also the method of claim 7 is inherently taught by the disclosure

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 3-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Arvidsson ('889).

With respect to claims 3-5, the claimed width enlargement would have been an obvious matter of design choice to a skilled artisan since such a modification would have involved a mere change in the size of a component. A change in size is generally recognized as being within the level of ordinary skill in the art. In re Rose, 105 USPQ 237 (CCPA 1955). It appears that there would be no new or unexpected result from such a modification.

With respect to claim 6, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the claimed location, since it has been held that rearranging parts of an invention involves only routine skill in the art. In re Japikse, 86 USPQ 70. It appears that there would be no new or unexpected result from such a modification.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
